Functional literacy rate now 62.92pc

STAFF CORRESPONDENT

The country's functional literacy rate among population aged over seven years now stands at 62.92 percent, according to a new BHS survey.

The functional literacy means the capability of reading, writing, understanding and counting. Functional literacy rate is higher among females than males.

The literacy rate was found higher at 73.69 percent among population aged between 11 and 45 years. The country's general literacy rate is 74.25 percent.

Such functional literacy rate among the population aged between 7-14 years is now 72.97 percent which is, however, 60.77 percent among population aged 15 years and above.

The report titled 'Literacy Assessment Survey (LAS) to Monitor Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) Project' was revealed at a programme held at the auditorium of the Bangladesh Bureau of Statistics (BBS) on Monday.

Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina receives three 'Kalabati' saris, made from banana plant fibre, from Bandarban Deputy Commissioner Yasmin Parveen Tibriji at the Prime Minister's Office on Monday.

PM receives 'Kalabati' saris as gift

Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina on Monday received 'Kalabati' sari and handicrafts made from the banana plant fibre, reports BBS.

Deputy Commissioner of Bandarban district Yasmin Parveen Tibriji handed over three saris and two jewellery boxes made from the banana plant fibre to the Prime Minister at the Cabinet Room of her office, said a press release of the Prime Minister's Press Wing.

For the first time in the country's history, Tant designer Radhabati Devi of Moulavibazar district prepared this Manipuri design sari from the fibre of the banana tree, while Anjali Devi and Dutta Singh made the three saris gifted to the Prime Minister, the press release also said.

Besides, a model of special machang house of residential shelter in the hilly areas, district brand calendar and brand book were also presented to the Prime Minister by the Deputy Commissioner of Bandarban.

Money Laundering GK Shamim jailed for 10 years

A Dhaka court on Monday sentenced expelled Juba League leader Golam Kibria Shamim alias GK Shamim to 10 years imprisonment in a case over money laundering, reports BBS.

The court also sentenced seven of his associates to four years jail each for assisting GK Shamim in acquiring the laundered money. Public Prosecutor Asad Rahman said.

They are Md Dewar Hossain, Md Morad Hossain, Md Shahidul Islam, Md Shahidul Islam, Md Kamal Hossain, Md Samad Hossain and Md Anwarul Karim. In an observation, the court said that money launderers have no ideology and they have to be collectively restrained to protect the national interest and development of the country.

Earlier, the prosecution and the defence had completed their arguments and the judge so far recorded statements of 23 prosecution witnesses, including the complainant of the case.

The investigating officer of the case CID's Senior Assistant Superintendent of Police Abu Sayeed submitted chargesheet against the accused on August 4 of 2020.
